P.T.A. Meets at Home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall

The members of the P.T.A. and their friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall, Monday evening, where they enjoyed a pleasant social evening. Owing to so much illness there were not so many out as was anticipated.

The meeting was opened by the President Mrs. E. Lewen Jon and the Secretary, Mrs. R. E. Hales, read the minutes of the last meeting. Following their adoption a statement of the finances indicated that the Association had $48 to its credit. A discussion regarding the continuance of the hot lunches until June 30th, met with the approval of the meeting, and Mrs. J. MacLeod was appointed convenor as a successor to Mrs. Ellis who found the work too great owing to spring work.

To defray expenses of the extra hot lunches the Association favored putting on a dance, the date being May 12th. The Executive was appointed as a committee to make further arrangements for the dance.

Upon the adjournment of the meeting the guests sat at six tables of bridge, and matched their abilities against each other. Mrs. T. T. Williams and Mr. W. R. Fonger proved to be most skillful with cards, while Mrs. W. Service and Norman Earl were winners of the consolation prizes.

A very delicious supper was served by the hostess after which the guests dispersed, having enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

Buffalo Hill News

"Americans Come To Me".

George Bernard Shaw, whose punnet wit has enlivened the world's cruise of the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Britain" when he arrived at San Francisco recently, denied he had ever said he would never visit America. "What I said," the Irish dramatist remarked, "was there was no need for me to visit America, as all interesting Americans come to see me."

That this was true is proved by the picture, for here in the Mayfair lounge of the 42,500 ton liner, he is seen with Mayor Angelo Rossi, who not only went to Shaw, but dressed himself in his cutaway and wore a carnation.

Horse Breeders' Club is Formed

A meeting was held Wednesday afternoon in Phillips' Hall for horse breeders who were interested in the breeding of horses for better colts. About twenty farmers were in attendance. J. W. Durno was present and acted as chairman. A club was formed and officers elected.

It was decided to call a meeting to further discuss the matter, which will be held in the school auditorium at 8 p.m., on Saturday, April 15th. Everybody in the district interested in a better class of horses is urged to attend.

The Inconnu patrol blew up. There was nothing Haskell could do but capturing those bandits. He knew that if Williamson asked why no move had been made, the short-haul business at the time would be at least some excuse. Besides, one of the other detachments, over on Hudson's Bay or southeast in the Reindeer Lake country, would probably send those bandits and the affair would blow over.

Those rainy springing days, as he sat in his cabin and looked out along the slope for a mere glimpse of Elizabeth Spaulding, he was tortured by the question of why she was still here, and what stood between her and Baker. Why had Baker brought out in such hot haste and left this North country that was his home? Was Elizabeth waiting for him, or had they split up?

Sometimes it seemed to Haskell that his appointment to this northern post had not been a mere vagary of luck but a manifest act of destiny, that he might meet Elizabeth Spaulding. His triumph over Baker, his commission as a Mounted officer, his career in the Mounted—what did the whole of it weigh against the prospect of losing Elizabeth after he had found her? With the sincerity of the only passionate love in his life, he felt that if Baker would let her go, he would take her away, his victory over the ex-sergeant would be a grinning mockery.

Late one quiet evening, when Bill Hardcock was gone on patrol, Haskell saw Elizabeth go up the slope to the cabin, which had been Baker's and light the candles there, and after a quarter-hour came away again. Tripping down the grassy terrace to Mrs. Drummond's flower garden, she sat down alone by the edge of it.

He went out of his lonesome cabin and out along the twilight slope to reach her.

Had in hand, Haskell came up. With cold arctic eyes he surveyed him, amused at his humility, proud that the man had no pride left.

She reminded him sharply: "I believe I asked you not to talk with me any more."

"Yes, you did," he said humbly. "I haven't forgotten. It's made him. These last couple weeks pretty miserable. But when I saw you over there to-night..."

"Elizabeth, won't you let me—can't I stay just a little while? I got some news that may interest you. May that cut me up pretty bad."

"He waited for her to comment, but she said nothing."

she said nothing. "You remember last winter I said my father was in poor health? I got a radiogram night before last about—about him."

Elizabeth understood that his father had died. She was quite well aware that Haskell was not exactly stricken by the news, though he was trying to play upon her sympathy.

She wondered why he was discussing the matter with her now.

As he went on talking of it, she began to see his reason. He mentioned the big country estate outside of Cobham, the town house in Ottawa, the extensive and valuable timber lands up the Kiamik. When he hinted at himself being the only heir and the owner of all this, she saw his whole drift.

The news left her entirely cold. From his treatment of Alan she knew how tricky and dishonorable he could be. He was trying to bait her. . . . She smiledardonically at him for being so crude about it. Probably he thought to make her his Ottawa mistress.

The affections of such a man were evanescent at best, and certainly incapable of build upon. Imagining her relatives with this man if he ever allowed himself to become dependent on him, she saw him staving off the marriage by the most elaborate dodges, and at last turning coldly away, when passion went. Alan Baker in time would go farther than Haskell and his Cobham estate. Alan was honest, he could be depended upon.

Angry and contemptuous she arose. "I've got to go. But there's something I really must thank you for, Inspector."

"To thank me for?" He too had risen. He was leaning toward her eagerly. "I'm glad . . . I didn't know I'd done."

"You didn't intend it as a favor, but it was." With mocking irony in her tones she went on: "Last winter Alan was offered a very splendid position in Victoria. I wanted him to take it. You used to say he was a non-com with no prospects, and that was somewhat true. I feel he didn't want to leave. He wanted to stay in service and live here in the North. Just when he was wavering, you forced his hand. You made him buy out, and so you made our marriage possible. I'm awfully grateful to you, really. You didn't realize what a favor you were doing."

She left him standing there, staring after her, dazed and speechless. That same evening, only an hour later, Haskell made a discovery so startling that in some measure it took his tortured thoughts away from Elizabeth.

A knock sounded on the door, and Whipple came in with a report.

"Sir, last week I missed fifty gallons of gas and five of oil from our stores. I thought it might be a paper mistake, but today I checked up again and where 'out still more."

"Well, what about it?" Haskell snapped.

"Nothing, sir, nothing at all," Whipple said hastily. He saw that his chief was in a vicious mood, and he backed away to the door. "I just thought that you would like to know, sir."

Most likely he was half-brother with an outboard motor is stealing this, sir. And he closed the door quietly. Alone again, unable to bear his stinging thoughts, Haskell turned in desperation to the service record in an effort to distract himself. As he had done on evenings past, he picked up an Edmonton station. Among the orders, news and personal messages, he heard that an aviator named Penkthorpe and another man, name unknown, had stolen a machine gun, a propeller, pack-chute, flying instruments and other things at Edmonton.

That evening, in Penkthorpe's monoplane, had last been sighted following the Alberta and Great Waterways railroad toward McMurtry. The aviator was warned to be on the lookout for the plane and to arrest the criminals on sight.

The name and description of Penkthorpe meant nothing to Haskell, but the description of the other person made him thoughtful. Tall, rangy, sandy-haired, gray-eyed, with a long prominent scar across his left temple—that description would fit Alan Baker to a dot. And Baker had gone south and might conceivably have reached Edmonton.

Haskell pondered this possibility a minute and then dismissed it. It was Bill Hardcock who innocently opened his eyes to the truth.

Knocking, entering, standing before the desk, Bill requested:

"Sir, if you don't mind, I've got three days free time coming to me, and if you don't mind I'd like to take them now. I'd like to have them in a row. If you don't mind—"

"I'm short of men as it is," Haskell cut him off. "You can't go. That's all."

It wasn't "that" for Bill. Refusing

FAT GIRLS OUT OF FASHION

Women of All Nations Slimming

All over the world Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who are striving for an attractive figure. Here is the method they are following to banish fat and bring into blossom all the natural attractiveness of their bodies. Every morning they take a half-teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of warm water before breakfast.

"They do this every morning—without missing one—for 'it's the daily dose that takes off the fat.' When Kruschen is taken daily, every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are removed from the system."

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life-giving salts is carried to every organ, gland, nerve, and fibre of the body, and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling"—energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity, and a charming figure.

To be driven out, he planted himself there—well-legged and pleaded for his three days—pleaded, till Haskell saw that the corporal must have some special and urgent reason for wanting off duty.

"Are you getting married?" he demanded sarcastically.

"No, sir," Bill answered, with more outward respect than he had ever shown before. "I want to go trout fishing."

Haskell angered. He started to order Bill out of the cabin on penalty of court-martial, but he suddenly checked himself, he half-rose from his chair gasping, with a revelation following through his brain.

There it was—the whole crashing truth! Baker's strange haste to buy out, his strange journey out to civilization, that "plane coming from the States" which he had mentioned, the request for a leave of absence. . . . All these disjointed facts suddenly clicked together like the parts of a Chinese puzzle.

That man wanted in Edmonton had been Baker. He came back to a plane to get those bandits! Hardcock was stealing gas and oil from the stores. . . .

"What about it?" Haskell snapped.

"Nothing, sir, nothing at all," Whipple said hastily. He saw that his chief was in a vicious mood, and he backed away to the door. "I just thought that you would like to know, sir."

Most likely he was half-brother with an outboard motor is stealing this, sir. And he closed the door quietly.

ation darkened and flickered out. How would it look for the ex-sergeant to capture or kill those men, or at least corner them and go down fighting? What would the higher officials have to say about that?

All his hatred and jealousy of Baker faded up. Not only was this man going to marry the girl he loved; this relentless sergeant, rising out of a crushing defeat, was going to show him up and make his very name a joke throughout the Force.

"You are instructed—" he said to the crackling words flashing up across the wilderness from Edmonton—"to capture that 'plane and to arrest those criminals on sight." Baker was a criminal, a wanted man, subject to arrest, certain of a penitentiary sentence somewhere to the south he was flying up across the latitude. He had a rendezvous somewhere with Hardcock.

Hardcock could be trailed to that meeting place. The plane could be captured, Baker arrested, sent up for a term. . . .

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaels

NONE CAN DOUBT

The world is so abrim with ecstasy
On any sun-sweet, wind-washed April day.
Life itself is so strongly living in each tree,
So surely pulsing through each robin's lay.

That none can doubt the wisdom of the plan
Which Nature plans so subtly on a way-side flower,
And through unnumbered springs
Have given to countless birds song's lovely dower.

Oh, every May pattern that is traced
Is with such infinite precision placed,
So deftly outlined, so exceeding well,
None can deny the whole vast scheme must be
As perfect as the little part men see!

Musicians Play on Streets

Artists Forced To Make Living in That Way

They say that street music in London, England, is on the lookout-gone highway, the reason being that over fifty per cent. of the musicians of the country are out of employment. It is no uncommon thing, we are assured, to hear the violin and other instruments played beautifully on some of the quieter streets, the artists seeking to make their living in that way.

This introduction of the talkies, and consequent doing away with orchestras, has intensified the problem, growing out of the ordinary unemployment situation—New Outlook, Toronto.

Trying Luck At Grain Show

Mrs. Mary E. Maycock, of Milford, Prince Edward County, Ontario, the only woman who has ever won three championships in succession at the Chicago International Grain Show, has entered samples of beans for the World's Grain Show at Regina.

Isn't it funny that though it is the night that fails it is the day that breaks?

HEACHE

Here's Quick Relief:

Aspirin brings you immediate relief. It acts before you can feel any effect at all from the slower forms of relief.

Do not hesitate to take Aspirin tablets because of this speed. Their quick action is due to the fact they dissolve immediately. They are perfectly safe. They do not depress the heart.

That's the beauty of a remedy like Aspirin. Anyone can take it, as often as they need any kind of its comfort. In sufficient quantity to get complete relief. You could take Aspirin every day in the year without ill effects.

When you want relief from headaches, colds, neuralgia, or neuritis, periodic pains, etc., stick to Aspirin. You know what it will do, and you know what you are taking.

The new reduced price on bottles of 100 tablets leaves no reason for experimenting with any substitute for relieving pain. Insist on Aspirin.

Another Cure Announced

Scientists Work Out Serum Treatment For Undulant Fever

Three research workers of the College of Medicine of the University of Cincinnati have announced the development of a serum that transforms undulant fever into something little more irritating than a slight, common cold.

Undulant fever—Malta fever, as it is known in Europe—results only to tuberculosis in economic importance in its effect on livestock as well as on man.

The serum was developed by Dr. Alfred E. O'Neil, Dr. W. B. Wherry and Dr. Lee Fosbury. Like many others who have worked with the disease, Dr. O'Neil fell ill of it, but recovered to resume his work.

Undulant fever gets its name because the temperature of the sufferer rises and falls in defined and regular curves. Fever, pain and disability continue, often for years. The new serum, the three researchers say, cures in three to four days.

In their research the three Cincinnati scientists found customary methods wouldn't work; that vaccines made from the germs themselves were far too dangerous to inject into anyone. So they boiled the bacteria in acid gas through the which nullified the poison, yet left the vaccine as effective as before.

The serum they made by injecting the vaccine into goats, drawing off blood and using the blood to treat blood and using the liquid that coagulates.

Full Measure Blunder Twine

From the results of recent inspections of blunder twine by the Seed Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture it is evident that manufacturers are not seeking to take advantage of the tolerance of 5 per cent. allowed by the inspection and Sale Act in the length per pound guaranteed. Of 181 samples tested last year, 224 exceeded the length per pound guaranteed, and only 5 were short of the 5 per cent. limit of tolerance.

German War On Muskrats

Herr Adam Roth, chief trapper for the Bavarian Government, has just completed a war against muskrats in that part of Germany, during which thousands of the pests were slain by an invention, which he preferred recently. Muskrats did great damage there, but now Bavaria has few, if any.

Two U.S. Citizens Intentionally Overpaid Income Tax Last Year

Two persons intentionally paid the State of New York greater sums in income taxes last year than they were required; one, a retired professor, waived his personal exemption from taxes on a part of his income, and the other, an executive in a transportation company, forebore to write off $25,000 of losses sustained in sales of securities. Neither is named, but both are cited as fine examples of public spirit. These men deserve public gratitude. They acted as a generous regard for the welfare of their fellows dictated. Their sacrifice is acceptable at a time when sacrifice is difficult and when the State finds it more difficult than in living memory to obtain the revenue that it requires.

Their example may be recommended to others who can make similar sacrifices without passing it on to their own dependents.—Brooklyn Eagle.

TWO Important Announcements

BY INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER

Wheat Price Guaranteed . . .

As evidence of our faith that the price of wheat and other farm products must soon improve, we are offering the farmers of Canada an assurance of higher prices for wheat with which to purchase machines vitally needed to produce and harvest the 1933 crop

DETAILS OF OFFER

On purchases made on or after April 1, 1933, you will be entitled to the benefit of a price of 75c per bushel, Winnipeg quotation, for No. 1 Northern Wheat as applied to cash paid on delivery of machines and on notes due in 1933 if paid in full within ten days of maturity.

Twice a month, on the 10th and 25th, the average Winnipeg price applying to No. 1 Northern wheat will be announced, to hold good for the ensuing two-weeks period. This price will represent the average Winnipeg market quotation for the five-day period prior to and including the 10th or 25th of the month.

If the average price for the periods during which payments are made are less than 75c per bushel, you will be credited with an adjustment of one-half of one per cent for each one cent that the price of wheat at Winnipeg is below 75c a bushel.

Thus, if the market price is 50c, you will be credited on the basis of a spread of 25c, or 12 1/2 per cent.

This offer applies to the entire McCormick-Deering line, excepting only motor trucks, industrial tractors, attachments when sold separately, binder twine, and repairs.

While this price guarantee is based on wheat, it is not necessary that you raise wheat for market in order to take advantage of this offer. Any farmer in Canada is entitled to buy machines under the favorable terms outlined above. Your McCormick-Deering dealer is fully informed as to all details.

INTEREST RATES REDUCED

As a measure of relief to our customers in all parts of Canada, we have reduced the rates of interest for payments made on both old and new notes. The amount of reduction applicable to your particular note, covering either former purchases or new business, may be learned by inquiry of the McCormick-Deering dealer nearest you or by writing us direct. In all cases the reductions are substantial and will be welcome. As a special arrangement for payments made in 1933, the rate of interest is reduced to 5 per cent on all notes, whether future or past due, from January 1 to date of payment, including notes taken for 1933 purchases.

We urge you to take advantage of this offer. It enables you to replace your worn out and obsolete equipment under favorable terms with the newest and most remarkable saving. Don't delay. See your McCormick-Deering dealer at once and get the terms on the equipment you need.

Change in District Courts

Formation of two district courts in this province, instead of three being one in each of the sixteen judicial districts, is provided for in a bill to amend the District Courts Act just submitted to the legislature. The act provides for one district court in Northern Alberta, having jurisdiction in the territory north of and including Red Deer. The district court of Southern Alberta would function in the region

Fish caught in the sea fisheries of Canada in 1932 totaled 711,317,800 pounds valued at over $12,500,000. Of the total catch British Columbia accounted for $27,631,900 pounds; Nova Scotia, 19,788,800 pounds; New Brunswick, 16,594,800 pounds; Quebec, 17,462,600 pounds and Prince Edward Island, 23,738,000 pounds.

The Place Viger Hotel, Montreal, centre for thirty-odd years of the French-Canadian political, social and life of the Province of Quebec, has been given a further lease of life under Canadian Pacific direction until October 1. It was to have closed its doors permanently January 31, but many and powerful representations brought about the respite.

A record-breaking ride through the Rockies on their three-car special clocked four hours from the regular trans-continental train schedule in what Canadian Pacific Railway officials believe to be the fastest run ever made for the 500 miles from Vancouver to Trail recently. The run, made for the Colbourne-Jones Company playing "Too True to be Good," started four hours after the regular train had left Vancouver and caught up with it at Field.

Easter Greetings

As the Easter 1933 is drawing near there is a feeling of optimism prevailing. Conditions are generally looking as though we may expect better things for the coming season. Several nations are enacting legislation that will, we hope, bring old man prosperity to his feet. Climatic conditions apparently improving, and we believe the people of this district especially, have something to look forward to that will be more encouraging.
